What is happening energetically and etherically as Seeding the Future Now poises itself to be present to support the manifestation and co-creative expression of children, parents, teachers and communities and new education paradigms around the earth?

I'd like to speak to the impetus and the energetics that fuels Seeding the Future Now, (STFN). It is one most powerful four letter word; the impetus, the fuel that ignites Seeding the Future Now is Love, the very fiber that truly fuels all life. The Course In Miracles says that everything is either love or a call for love. STFN is fueled by love in response to a call for love- the care and nourishment of the heart with mind as hearts' servant. Read on with your heart!

the science of today, which is recording the inexplicable change in the constant vibration of the megahertz of the earth, (the rate is doubling,) or the fact that planet earth is now crossing the galactic equator, or if the Mayan Calendar has your curiosity as it tells us we are now in the final cycle called Universal Consciousness, you may be aware of something momentous occurring. Perhaps your spiritual or awakening path has come to a place where you receive direct guidance or if there is within you a distant stirring of something deeper and more profound occurring than what meets the eye. Many of us can attest to there being a call, an urge, a knowing that we have before us potential and possibilities of a shift in the notion of reality we all share. Many of us are called inward.

As we move our attention inward, we realize that during these most intense times for the human race upon this planet, our first intention is to access the experience of our OnenessMORE

“So Say The Children brought forth by Terry Damlos

We are here. We are here waiting. It is time to Seed New Education. We have so much to teach you. We desire to guide you. Step aside. Trust and step aside. Let go and be free, so we may come forward. We dance. We sing. We laugh. It is a joyful experience. We can no longer be imprisoned by traditional school systems that attempt to take our spirit away. We understand that this is not deliberate, they just do not understand. They have not shifted out of the old paradigm, but we can no longer wait. You see the outcome— labels that attempt to limit us. Even more our vital gift of imagination is suppressed. We are here to lead and to heal. The world needs us and we need you. Put your fears aside and walk beside us. Trust your inner wisdom as we trust ours. What will New Education look like? It will take on many different forms, but we the children must be the creators. There is much leaving our world, and there is so much wonderful newness arriving. Be present, extend yourselves, open the doors. There is much more to come...

So say the children...

“Thank you for responding to the invitation to embrace your magnificence in NEW ways today.”

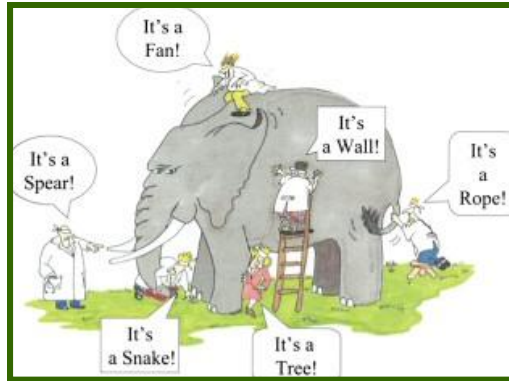

“The New Education Is A Magnificent Elephant”

Every so often the stories I used to read to my K-1 children in the classroom had a powerful effect on me as a teacher engaged in a new learning mode long after the initial reading. These stories would bring out symbols, metaphors and beautiful new meaning to my own process of weaving a web of visionary thought in education. Here is one story that can easily capture our hearts and longing for liberating our dreams and visions of brilliance in all we do.

This is the story of the six blind men. They lived together and enjoyed using their other four senses of hearing, touching, smelling and tasting while taking care of their home until one day they all heard the exciting news that the prince had acquired an elephant. They decided to take the long journey to the palace by foot and could hardly wait to go touch this new thing called ‘elephant’. As the story retold by Karen Backstein reads, “the guard led the six men to the animal which stood quietly in the garden.

The first blind man touched the elephant’s side. ‘It is strong and wide,’ he ear was very, very big. The elephant flapped it gently. The fifth man laughed. ‘It’s just like a fan!’ The sixth man touched the animal’s long thin tail. ‘An elephant is like a rope’, thought. ‘I think the elephant is like a wall.’ The second blind man touched the elephant’s long, round trunk. ‘Oh, it is just like a snake!’ he decided. The third man grabbed the elephant’s smooth ivory tusk. ‘Why, an elephant is as sharp as a spear!’ The fourth man held the elephant’s leg. He thought it was as round and firm as a tree. The fifth blind man the elephant’s ear. The

I Had A Dream”

by Zahra L.

Last June, I awoke from a dream that was so powerful I still remember exactly how I felt and what was said. In the dream I met with President Obama and was politely telling him how disappointed I was by his appointment of Arne, more of the same, Duncan as secretary of education. I then started to tell him how we were doing it all wrong in traditional schools.

The president looked at me and said, quite equitably, “Okay Zahra so what is it we should be doing, one, and ,two, how?”

It was a stunning revelation to me to realize that even if the President wanted to change the whole face of education who or what organization could he turn to to find a vision and better yet a plan for nationwide implementation. So I posted this dream online at the Alternative Education Resource Organization website, www.educationrevolution.org and was delighted by the number of people who are interested in developing a plan, a new dream of what education can look like. Are you one of these dreamers?

Imagine there's no
Heaven
It's easy if you try
No hell below us
Above us only sky
Imagine all the people Living for today

Imagine there's no countries
It isn't hard to do Nothing to kill or die for
And no religion too

Imagine all the people Living life in peace
You may say that I'm a dreamer
But I'm not the only one I hope someday you'll join us

And the world will be as one
Imagine no possessions
I wonder if you can

No need for greed or hunger
A brotherhood of man
Imagine all the people
Sharing all the world

You may say that I'm a
But I'm not the only one
I hope someday you'll
join us
And the world will live as one
